

CJDC Radio and Television Community Project Award

Application deadline: November 30

Creative students and community members from around the Northern Lights College region are encouraged to submit proposals for the CJDC Radio and Television Community Project Award. This year, there are two awards available of $1,900 each for a project with a cultural focus that would benefit the Northern Lights College community.

The award program is designed to allow for as much originality, creativity and flexibility as possible on the part of the applicant. Past projects have included video productions, poetry chapbooks, art murals, art workshops and presentations.

To apply for this award, the applicant should submit a proposal that includes the following:

1. A clear description of the project
2. Description of how the intended objectives and outcomes will benefit the community
3. A detailed budget showing how the award money will be used
4. If applicable, letter(s) of support from community groups or members

William and Mary Wanka Art Promotion Award

Application deadline: November 30

This year, there is one award available of $1,130 for a project with a cultural focus that would benefit the Northern Lights College community.

The award program is designed to allow for as much originality, creativity and flexibility as possible on the part of the applicant. Past projects have included video productions, poetry chapbooks, art murals, art workshops and presentations.

To apply for this award, the applicant should submit a proposal that includes the following:

1. The project's objective
2. The activities planned
3. The intended outcome
4. A project budget defining expenditures

Applicants may contact Lindsey Borek, Executive Director, NLC Foundation, at 250-784-7543 or by email at lborek@nlc.bc.ca for further information.

Proposals may be sent to NLC Foundation, 11401 - 8th Street, Dawson Creek, BC V1G 4G2 on or before November 30.